Forecast for Saturday 17 Oct 2020

Weather: Some clear spells overnight, but rather cloudy at times with thicker cloud in north and east and some cloud on lower slopes too. Then a mostly dry and bright start with some sunny spells and most low cloud in northeast will lift and clear, but still a good deal of cloud through the day, especially across the north and east with the odd shower possible.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 800m: Between 30 and 60%, with best chance in southwest. Broken cloud above 800m, but down to 600m at times, especially in northeast, where down to 400 or 500m at first.

Visibility: Good beneath cloud, but some reductions with showers and poor or very poor on the tops in cloud.
